

Lina Rabi did her undergraduate studies at Birzeit University in Palestine. Master degree in Developmental psychology she studied in Durham University, UK.

In Palestine, she worked with Children with special needs. She has experience working with children with ADHD, Autistic spectrum disorder, Down syndrome, William syndrome, cerebral palsy and learning difficulties.

With Save the Children she worked on Educational projects in Palestine. She held workshops on parenting, attachment, PTSD, anger management, coping skills, grief to parents and social workers in local institutions. Group therapy was provided to adolescent boys ex detainees in Israeli prison. After receiving her MA degree in the UK, she has moved to Belgrade, Serbia. She is Transactional analysis counselor under supervision. She works with children in a kindergarten. In her private practice she works with parents, adults and adolescent.